HERO EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Purpose of this section:
Provide immediate clarity and legitimacy to Fawrii.

Key question we are answering for a tutor
“Is this a professional platform for tutors like me?”

Visual guidance

Layout

- Full-width hero with clear vertical hierarchy:
    1. Headline
    2. Supporting line
    3. Primary CTA
    4. Secondary CTA (text link)
- Director video placed immediately below the hero, separated by spacing rather than a divider.
- CTA beneath the video should visually echo the hero CTA, not compete with it.

Imagery / visuals

- Use real tutors or subtle product UI only.
- Tutors should appear:
  - Calm
  - Focused
  - In realistic teaching or preparation settings
- Avoid:
  - Stock “smiling at laptop” poses
  - Abstract tech illustrations
  - Any visual implying urgency, hustle, or gamification
- Background should be muted and neutral to allow copy to lead.

Desktop vs mobile behaviour

- On mobile:
  - Headline and subheading stack cleanly with generous line spacing
  - Primary CTA remains visible without scrolling
  - Video appears immediately after hero copy, not buried
- Ensure no visual crowding; whitespace is part of the reassurance.

MAIN BODY SECTIONS

SECTION 1

Headline: Why Fawrii Exists

Copy:

Many tutors tell us the same things.

Too much admin.
Unclear rules.
Chasing payments.
Not enough support when something goes wrong.

Fawrii was built to change that.

We’ve created a platform where tutors are treated as professionals, with clarity around how things work, real control over how you teach, and proper safeguards built in from the start.

The focus is simple. Let tutors spend more time teaching, and less time dealing with problems.

CTA at end of section (subtle): See how tutoring works on Fawrii

EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Purpose of this section: To explain the real tutor problems Fawrii was created to solve and establish the platform as a considered, professional response.

Key question we are answering for a tutor: ““Why does this platform exist, and what problem is it actually solving for tutors?”

Visual guidance:

Layout

- Standard content-width section immediately after the hero and director video.
- Preserve line breaks in the opening list for readability and rhythm.
- Keep paragraph widths comfortable. Avoid compressing into dense blocks.
- CTA should appear visually understated and secondary to the hero CTA.

Graphics / diagrams

- Optional supporting visual only if needed for balance:
  - A subtle transition graphic suggesting order, structure, or clarity
- Avoid:
  - Loud icons
  - Problem-heavy imagery
  - Illustrations that dramatise frustration

Desktop vs mobile behaviour

- On mobile:
  - Maintain the stacked, line-by-line opening list
  - Ensure breathing room between lines and paragraphs
- CTA remains visible without dominating the section.

SECTION 2

Headline: How Tutors Work On Fawrii

Copy:

Tutors on Fawrii can work in three ways. You choose what you offer and when.

Booked one-to-one lessons

Planned sessions scheduled in advance, lesson by lesson.

- You set your availability
- Lessons are booked ahead of time
- Suited to regular students and ongoing support

This is the most predictable way to tutor on the platform.

Instant one-to-one tutoring

On-demand sessions for students who need help right now.

- You choose if and when you're available instantly
- Sessions are short and focused
- Often used for urgent questions or exam support

You opt in. Nothing is assigned automatically.

Courses and live classes

Structured lessons taught live to multiple students.

- You design the course and session structure
- Students sign up to attend
- One lesson can be taught to many learners

This suits tutors who prefer a planned, repeatable format.

Some tutors focus on one format. Others combine all three.

You stay in control across each option. Availability, pricing, and lesson types are always set by you.

CTA below section: How it works

EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Purpose of this section: To give tutors a clear mental model of how teaching is delivered on Fawrii before discussing pay, rules, or safeguards.

Key question we are answering for a tutor: “How would I actually teach on this platform day to day?”

Visual guidance:

Layout

- Three equal columns on desktop.
- One card or column per lesson type:
    1. Booked one-to-one lessons
    2. Instant one-to-one tutoring
    3. Courses and live classes
- Headings must match copy exactly.
- Avoid visual hierarchy that implies one option is “better”.

Graphics / diagrams

- Use simple, literal diagrams:
    - Booked 1-to-1: tutor and one student with calendar cue
    - Instant 1-to-1: tutor and one student with “now” cue
    - Classes: tutor with multiple students
- Icons may support understanding but must not replace text.
- No pricing, earnings, or percentage indicators here.

Desktop vs mobile behaviour

- Desktop: three columns side by side.
- Mobile: stacked cards in the same order as above.
- Ensure each heading is visible without scrolling into body copy.

SECTION 3

Headline: Pay, Control and Flexibility

Copy:

Fawrii does not set tutor fees.

You decide what you charge, based on how you teach and when you're available.

- Your rates are always set by you
- Instant availability can be priced higher if you choose
- Courses can increase total earnings as more students join
- Clear cancellation and no-show rules apply consistently
- Payments are handled through the platform on a clear schedule

Nothing is assigned. You stay in control of your time, your rates, and how you work.

CTA below section: See pay & rules

EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Purpose of this section: Purpose: Remove money anxiety

Key question we are answering for a tutor: "Who controls pricing and earning?"

Visual guidance

Layout

- Single-column text block with strong vertical rhythm.
- Headline, then short statements, then a clean bullet list.
- Do not split this into cards or columns. It should read as settled and authoritative.

Graphics / diagrams

- Optional supporting visual only:
  - A simple flow such as Tutor sets rate → Lesson delivered → Platform pays tutor
- No numbers, percentages, or example prices.
- Avoid charts, graphs, or anything that implies optimisation or pressure.

Desktop vs mobile behaviour

- Identical content and order across devices.
- Ensure bullets are easily scannable on mobile with sufficient spacing.
- CTA remains text-based, not a button, to keep tone calm.

SECTION 4

Headline: Trust, Safeguarding & Support

Copy:

Fawrii is designed to support safe, professional tutoring from the ground up.

- Lessons may be recorded to protect tutors and learners if a concern is raised
- Clear standards and boundaries are set upfront
- Support is available if something does not feel right
- Clear processes are in place for cancellations, no-shows, or disputes

This is not about monitoring tutors or judging teaching style.
It is about creating a structured environment where tutors are supported and protected.

CTA below section: Become a Tutor

EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Purpose of this section: To reassure tutors that safeguarding exists to support them, not to police them.

Key question we are answering for a tutor: “Will I be protected?”

Visual guidance

Layout

- Single column layout with generous spacing.
- Headline, short intro line, then a restrained bullet list.
- Keep this section visually calm and grounded, not heavy or formal.

Graphics / diagrams

- Use subtle trust cues only:
  - Shield or support icon used once, not repeated per bullet.
- Do not use warning symbols, alert colours, or compliance imagery.
- Do not visualise recording devices, cameras, or monitoring screens.

Desktop vs mobile behaviour

- Identical content and order across devices.
- Bullets should stack cleanly with ample spacing on mobile.
- CTA remains text-based to avoid urgency or pressure.

CTA below section: Become a Tutor

5) EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Purpose of this section: To help tutors confidently self-select by values, expectations, and working style.

Key question we are answering for a tutor: "Is this the kind of platform I want to be associated with?"

Layout

- Single column, editorial-style layout.
- Headline, followed by a short framing sentence, then a clean bullet list.
- Avoid a "Good fit / Not a fit" split, which can feel judgemental.

Graphics / diagrams

- Optional supporting visual only:
  - A calm, professional tutor at work, or
  - A neutral abstract shape suggesting structure and focus.
- Do not use warning icons, crosses, or exclusionary visuals.

Desktop vs mobile behaviour

- Identical content and order across devices.
- Bullets should remain easy to scan on mobile with generous spacing.
- CTA remains text-based, not a button, to keep the tone settled.

SECTION 6

Headline: Trusted by parents and schools

Copy:

Fawrii is built to meet the expectations of parents and schools as well as tutors.

The platform provides:

- Verified tutors
- Clear professional standards
- Safeguarding built into how lessons run
- Accountability through structured processes

This reassurance is built into the system, without changing how tutors work or limiting their control.

CTA: NONE

2) EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Purpose of this section: To quietly signal external credibility and trustworthiness to tutors considering association with the platform.

Key question we are answering for a tutor: “Would parents and schools feel confident using this platform?”

Visual guidance

Layout

- Short, contained section with limited vertical height.
- Headline followed by a compact list or short paragraph.
- This section should feel like a confidence marker, not a pitch.

Graphics / diagrams

- Optional subtle trust cue only:
  - Neutral institutional imagery, or
  - A simple abstract shape suggesting structure and reliability.
- Do not show children, classrooms, or parent-focused marketing imagery.
- Do not include logos, badges, or compliance stamps.

Desktop vs mobile behaviour

- Identical structure across devices.
- Keep the section visually lighter than tutor-focused sections so it does not dominate attention.

SECTION 7 - FINAL CTA (END OF PAGE)

Headline: Tutor on your terms

Copy:

If you want flexible tutoring work, control over your rates, and a platform built to support you professionally, Fawrii gives you a clear place to start.

Primary CTA below section: Become a Tutor

Secondary CTA(s)

Optional, text-only and visually de-emphasised beneath the primary button:

- How it works
- Read safeguarding & standards

(Only include if space allows. The primary CTA should clearly dominate.)

2) EMOTIONS, DESIGN, LOOK AND FEEL

Designer notes

Placement
- Full-width section at the very end of the page.
- Visually distinct from the section above, with clear breathing space.

Visual tone
- Strong but calm.
- Confidence through simplicity rather than decoration.
- This should feel like a considered conclusion, not a banner.

Supporting reassurance (small text under CTA)
- Keep subtle and close to the button:

Signing up is the first step, not a commitment to take work.

What should NOT be included
- No countdowns, urgency language, or directional arrows.
- No icons, illustrations, or stock imagery.
- No “Join now”, “Get started today”, or similar cues.
